Trump offers condolences to Japan for Godzilla attack

Washington (JPN) - US President Donald Trump today offered his condolences to the Japanese government, he said that he was deeply moved by the devastation wreaked upon Tokyo by Godzilla and that he was shocked to the core when he saw the broadcast on television yesterday evening.

The President addressed the American people via a speech, describing the "recent events in Japan" as a "warning to be heeded by the USA, "Do you see on ABC, what happened last night in Japan? Marvel! The country was totally destroyed by this giant, radioactive lizard, thousands died! It was much worse than the attack in Sweden on Friday."

President Trump followed up his address on Twitter:

Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump
You look at what’s happening last night in Japan. Who would believe this? Terrible monster destroys their cities.
Get smart, USA
6:22 AM - 21 Feb 2017
4,615 Retweets 27,831 Likes 31,086

He also offered to share all intelligence gathered on the monster up to now with the Japanese government. "We need to make sure that this kind of attack cannot be repeated here," he tweeted. The Pacific Fleet is already on high alert.

The President’s words have won him praise from the UN, he explained. "We made the same mistakes as Japan, I have looked my best people with building a huge wall down the eastern Pacific coast. And they’re doing it right away because we need to protect our country from nuclear contaminated giant lizards."

In closing, President Trump announced that in the coming days he would settle an Executive Order imposing an entry ban on all lizards.

Read the German version HERE.

---

More from The Postillon

BORDER WALL

"Border Wall": MEZ offers Trump an affordable solution

Trump wants to deport American Indians to India

Trump’s 10 radical plans for his first 100 days

---

The Postillon Online

Subscribe | Receive our latest news by email

Enter your email address... Send

FAQ About The Postillon Support us | The Postillon 1662 | Archives | Postillon [Deutsch]

All texts of The Postillon released under
CC BY-NC-SA 3.0 (NonCommercial)

Prepared by W3slipe

---

Recommended for you

-模式化 casting for the main character. A study window.
- Barefoot people: a relationship more prone to cheating than singles.
- Japan: Four out of five first-person shooter gamers take for shooting games.